Wild Life in Manitoba

When the first man came to North America he found the land teeming with animal life. The Indians and the birds. But as the centuries advanced the wild life disappeared from a great deal of the arable portion of the continent.

Further northward, however, conditions have been different. Here wild animals and game birds still abound. The reasons for this are obvious. The wild life in all the world today, to the north, northeast, and northwest there are water areas, tree shelters and great open spaces. In these the wild animals and birds breed each year.

This means that Manitoba has a great asset which is denied the thickly settled portions of the continent. It means shooting game. It means a fur trade. It means a fur trade.

Some Restrictions
Here are some restrictions about which every resident of Manitoba should be advised. It is unlawful— To hunt on Sunday. To hunt or trap on any other person's land without permission. To shoot without a license. To neglect to wear a complete outer suit of white while hunting big game. To allow dogs to pursue or be at large in the haunts of big game.

Manitoba Grows 45% of Canada's Meat

Manitoba agriculture rears over a solid foundation. The soil is fertile, the rainfall is adequate, the climate is constant, and the products are of very high quality, and the market are assured.
